What is Denmark's energy source?

More than two-thirds of Denmark's renewable energy comes from bioenergy, which is energy stored in organic material or biomass. Agriculture is big business in Denmark, and it indirectly helps provide energy too, with manure, animal fats, and straw used as the basis for biogas and liquid biofuels.

What percentage of Denmark's energy is generated from renewable sources?

In 2017 fossil fuels and other non renewable sources accounted for just 28.6% of Denmark's total net generation and continues to decline against a total of 71.4% generated from renewable sources. * excludes internal consumption by plant. ** figures in italics include photovoltaics. *** includes biofuels and biodegradable fraction of waste.

Is Denmark a fuel efficient country?

Denmark is one of the world's most fuel efficient countries and the difference between the two measures is smaller than many other countries. In 2017 wind was the major source of Denmark's net electricity generation, with 50.2 percent of the total yearly production.
