Overview

Do tariff barriers affect global PV product trade?

The global trade of solar photovoltaic (PV) products substantially contributes to increases in solar power generation and carbon emissions reductions. This paper depicts global PV product trade patterns, explores emissions reduction potential, and evaluates the impeding effect of tariff barriers on global PV product trade and emissions reductions.

Are crystalline silicon photovoltaic cells antidumping or countervailing duty?

The American Alliance for Solar Manufacturing Trade Committee filed both antidumping duty petitions and countervailing duty petitions on crystalline silicon photovoltaic cells, whether or not assembled into modules, from Cambodia, Malaysia, Thailand and Vietnam.

Can global PV trade networks be used as a dependent variable?

First, combined with the empirical econometric model, the global PV trade networks can be taken as the dependent variable to further investigate its economic and environmental impacts.

Why is PV trading declining in North America?

North America has witnessed a constant decline and its ratio slid from 19.58% in 2000 to 8.31% in 2010, then to 6.28% in 2019, largely due to the “anti-dumping” policy of the US, which seriously hindered PV trade. The third echelon consisted of South America, Africa, and Oceania is more in the form of lines because of their small trade volume.

Does global PV trade conform to the long tail effect?

In other words, global PV trade conforms to the long tail effect that fewer economies dominate more while more economies control less. The reciprocity is between 0.344 and 0.378, and its increasing trend still reflects economies' willingness to establish mutual trade links.

What is a pV product dispute?

The essence of the PV product disputes is the dilemma facing the PV industry: whereas any government needs to provide subsidies to develop renewable energy industries, 48 these measures would violate WTO rules and thus incur anti-dumping or countervailing measures. The US-China dispute in this case also arose in this context.
