When it comes to adding solar panels — otherwise known as photovoltaic (PV) systems — to your roof, most insurance companies see them as part of the structure of your home. That's good news because it means a regular homeowners policy usually has you covered, and you won't need to get special insurance just for your solar panels.

Solar panel insurance: The bottom line The only way to know if the price of your homeowner's insurance will increase due to the solar panels is to speak with your insurance agent. Discuss your plans with your insurance company before you schedule a consultation for installation.

If your solar panels are permanently attached to your home's structure, such as rooftop-mounted panels, your homeowners insurance policy may cover them as part of your dwelling coverage. Solar panels that aren't attached to your home, such as ground-mounted panels, may be covered by your homeowners insurance policy under other structures coverage.

Most rooftop solar energy systems are covered by standard homeowners policies, which doesn't change your insurance plan. However, you may need to increase the amount of coverage on your home to account for the cost of the system which can then raise your premium. Do you need insurance for solar panels?

Does home insurance cover rooftop solar panels?

Yes, most home insurance policies do cover rooftop solar panels. By installing solar panels you are enabling your house to produce its own electricity. These rooftop solar panels are usually considered a permanent attachment to your property, similar to a patio or a security system and can, therefore, be considered a form of home improvement.

Are solar panels covered by a separate insurance policy?

Separate insurance policies for solar panels may offer additional benefits, such as coverage for loss of income due to system downtime or the costs associated with temporary replacement power. These added protections could provide financial security in unexpected disruptions to your solar panel system.

Will solar panels increase my home insurance?

Many insurance providers offer discounts on home insurance costs if you make the house more eco-friendly. Adding solar panels to power your home definitely fits the bill. The only way to know if the price of your homeowner's insurance will increase due to the solar panels is to speak with your insurance agent.

How can I insure my solar panel system?

To insure your solar panel system, you can add endorsements or riders to your existing homeowners insurance policy. Endorsements modify the policy terms to specifically include coverage for your solar panel system.

Should I tell my insurance company if I have solar panels?

Whether you buy or lease your panels, you should always tell your insurance company that you've installed solar panels on your home. Note that if you lease your panels and insure them yourself, your insurance company may limit any claim payout for wind and hail damage since you don't own the panels.
